ALTVISTA, Virginia — On November 11, 2021, at 3 p.m., The National Center for Healthy Veterans (NCHV), will host their 2nd annual Veterans Day celebration with keynote speaker Dr. Ben Carson. This year's event will include a celebratory concert performed by the world renowned PromisedLand Quartet, a petting zoo, and fresh Valor Farm meals will be available for purchase. The patriotic event will transcend local and regional boundaries and aims to celebrate the value of Veterans past, present, and future. The ceremony will take place at the NCHV's Valor Farm, at 980 Wards Road, Altavista, VA 24517.

The purpose of the NCHV is to "Return Healthy Veterans to America." NCHV is comprised of the following: a natural healing environment, dignified work in a farm and ranch setting, community living to defeat isolation, faith-based trauma recovery life skills training and vocational/technical training to achieve maximum employment potential, job placement, and economic opportunity. All of this is aimed at helping NCHV "Patriots" achieve their full, God-given potential and contribute to American society in every possible way. President Bob Dees, Major General, US Army, Retired, states, "America's Veterans are an untapped national treasure!".

The $39 million investment veteran's facility in Altavista will fundamentally reshape veteran care in America, mobilizing the full capabilities of America's private sector. President Bob Dees states, "Where would we be without our Veterans? Gratefully, we don't have to ask that question. They have always been there for us. Now … we must be there for them, America.".
